NORTH CAROLINA HEALTHCARE ASSOCIATION EXPANDS RELATIONSHIP WITH MARSH & MCLLENAN AGENCY

Raleigh, NC – 2 August 2018 – The North Carolina Healthcare Association (NCHA) announced today that Marsh & McLennan Agency (MMA) is their official business insurance partner in addition to their existing employee health and benefits relationship. This partnership will provide more than 130 North Carolina member hospitals and health systems as well as affiliated healthcare provider organizations with the opportunity to advance their insurance coverage capabilities through MMA’s global resources.

MMA has been the employee health and benefits partner for NCHA members for more than three years, providing consulting services and brokerage for hospitals and health systems throughout North Carolina. These strategies have saved participating hospitals millions of dollars and improved the health and wellness of thousands of hospital and health system team members and care providers.

As part of this expanded relationship, MMA will support NCHA member healthcare providers in implementing data-driven solutions that will improve efficiency and cost effectiveness, and provide unique programs to protect and mitigate risk.

“We are so honored to work with the NCHA and make a difference in the healthcare industry in North Carolina,” said Michael Worsman, Senior Vice President with MMA. “This relationship will impact hundreds of thousands of lives across the state and provide NCHA members with the opportunity to access global data insights that will improve their company’s financial conditions as well as mitigate their risk in a changing, tumultuous market.”

“Hospitals and health systems are among the largest employers in 72 of the state’s 100 counties,” said Steve Lawler, NCHA president. “Maintaining financial viability and providing strong employee benefit programs to recruit and retain talented individuals are vital for our members to continue providing high quality healthcare in our communities.”
